In the context of educational programs like Ready Set Teach, performance measurement related to student outcomes typically involves assessing both the effectiveness of the program itself and the impact it has on participating students. Quantitative assessment involves collecting and analyzing numerical data related to student outcomes. This could include metrics such as graduation rates, academic achievement scores, standardized test scores, attendance rates, and dropout rates. By comparing these metrics between students who participated in the Ready Set Teach program and those who did not, educators can assess the program's impact. Qualitative methods involve gathering descriptive data through methods such as interviews, surveys, focus groups, and observations. This helps in understanding the experiences, perceptions, and attitudes of students who participated in the program. Feedback from teachers and mentors involved in the Ready Set Teach program can offer valuable insights into its effectiveness. Evaluations can assess aspects such as program organization, curriculum quality, mentorship quality, and overall satisfaction with the program. Ready Set Teach likely has specific learning objectives or competencies that students are expected to achieve. Assessment methods such as rubrics, portfolios, and performance tasks can be used to measure students' mastery of these objectives. Long-term studies track the progress of students who participated in the RST program.

G. Additional TEA Program Requirements

1. Stipend Recipient Recruitment: Describe the plan to recruit Education and Training teachers and field site teachers who are interested and eligible in participating in the program and receiving stipends. The plan must include strategies to equitably recruit diverse individuals and identify individuals with potential criteria including a demonstrated track record of success and/or achievement, involvement in student organizations and/or school activities, strong evaluation ratings, and strong relationships with students.

The district currently has 5 dual credit Education and Training educators who have demonstrated a track record of success and achievement in the Ready Set Teach program for at least 5 years. Their students participate successfully in the Texas Association of Future Educators and several students have gone on to compete at the national level. Their students participate in the MISD Made to Teach program and are involved in communicating the program opportunities to middle school students at campus transition to high school programs. Several of their students have been awarded contracts in MISD and demonstrate success as a classroom teacher. In the event that an educator in the program has to leave the district prior to the completion of the school year, the CTE Director along with the Personnel department will seek educators who are dual credit certified, have a proven track record of student success, and demonstrate the desire to become part of the program

2. Program Implementation Support: Describe the types of support that will be provided to Education and Training teacher stipend recipients to ensure successful implementation of the curriculum and program. The definition of successful programming should align with the major goals/objectives of the program.

MISD is fortunate to already have a strong district and campus support team in place to mentor and support the educators to ensure success. The district also has support teams at each of the five high schools to ensure students feel supported and encouraged during the program. Campus support extends to the parents and caregivers as well to assist them in supporting their students and to have a clear understanding of the expectations of the program and most importantly the opportunities available for their students post graduation.
